A policeman's cap, believed to be that of Patrolman William A. Dillon of the Angelica Street Station, was found shortly after noon today at the intersection of the Denny and Olive street roads, 12 miles west of St. Louis, thus strengthening the conviction of the Police Department that Dillon had been slain by the same two automobile thieves who yesterday murdered Motorcycle Policeman John McKenna.

Another important development was the finding of two boys who told the police they saw a policeman, undoubtedly Dillon, struggling with a man who held a "shiny weapon," in a garage in the rear of 4253 Athlone avenue, about 8:30 a. m. yesterday. to Chihuahua.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 8 .- Ger ershing in a delayed report to Gen Funston received here yesterday onfirmed previous information that American troops were moving south ward from Cusihuirachic on the trail through Satevo, and that all information available at his headquarters indicated that Villa was traveling i the direction of Parral. He explained his failure to report mor frequently by statements that the aerolanes on which he had depended for mmunication had been unable to operate successfully and that weather co itions had interfered with transmission of messages by field wireless. He added that he had not been in communication with his headquarters at Colonia Dub lan for nine days. Gen. Pershing in formed Gen. Funston of the exact pos tions of the advanced columns and what those units are. He said the four privates who had danger and two had almost recovered. He did not report their names.

Consul Letcher's report that Villa appeared to be moving south heyond Satevo, Gen. Gutierrez's assertions that his forces had defeated a band of 50 Villa men at Cienguillas, 10 miles south of Satevo, and that Villa himself had left there on the morning of the same day increased the hope of those at headquarters here that perhaps the American forces might yet overtake the ritive bandit within a short time. This revived optimism was strengthened by apparently reliable, that the troops of the de facto Government had een stationed at strategic points south Villa's last reported position. Gen. Pershing reported that one of his flying scouts had located Col. Brown's dumn at Cusibutrachic April 5. It was elleved here that by this time Col errived at Cushuirachic, April 5, was sain in the chase. His was the first olumn to arrive as far south as Cusiuirachie but the exhaustion of his sup lies had forced him to halt there.

New Line May Be Necessary. Faced by the apparent hopeless tores over Mexican railroads from coornizing the inadequacy of the present system of supply, army offi-cers at headquarters here virtually are convinced that some alternative will have to be found.

If two or three times the of troops now operating in Mexico are provided, the maintchance of the present line that winds its circuitous length from Columbus to Satevo punitive force is increased to that extent many of the officers here regard it as imperative that a new short line be established. Villa's movement to the south and east has made possible such a line from Ojinaga or some point near Ojinaga. From Oilnaga almost opposite Presidio, Tex., there extends a trai to Chihuahua and another from Chiushua to Satevo. The total distance s only 170 miles.

Another difficulty pointed out at head quarters was the uncertainty as to the manner in which the Carranza Government would view the establishment of a new base and a new line of communica tions. The proposed route from Ojinag: to Satevo goes through the City of it would be possible to skirt the limits

It was explained that half the troops now guarding the long line from C lumbus could protect the short line, re leasing the remainder for field operations or for guarding the extension the line beyond Satevo.

Satisfaction was expressed at head quarters today over the failure to receive from Chihuahua any reports of ill feeling caused by the landing there yesterday of two army aeroplanes. Some fear was felt here last night that the authorities might have regarded their coming as a technical violation of the tacit understanding that forces of the expedition should keep away from

Feel Worse This Spring?

WHY should the early weeks of spring find so many folks dispirited, dull, irritable and without either life or liking for the day's work? Of course, there's a reason. / Winter is a strain. Battling with severe weather and fighting off the poisons of colds or grip tends to tire out the kidneys and if the kidneys get weak, you feel lame and tired in the morning, run-down and nervous, and suffer with all-day backaches and distressing kidney disorders. Damp, chill, changing weather seems to make these troubles worse. Brace yourself up. Give the kidneys a chance and they will flush the poisons from the blood and help cleanse and tone the system. Don't delay and get worse. St. Louis people will tell you what Doan's Kidney Pills do for weak, run-down kidneys.

A dull, dragging ache in the small of my back robbed me of all energy and ambition and made me feel weak and all unstrung. Dizzy spells came over me and my sight blurred. My feet swelled badty at times. Doan's Kidney Pills strengthened my kidneys, I felt better and was given more life and energy."

Walter J. Thomure, painter, 2610 N. Sarah St., says: "I think every painter ought to know of Doan's Kidney Pills, for the handling of turpentine affects the kidneys and the strain from reaching with the brush is hard on the back. I was bothered so at times that it was hard for me to straighten up. Mornings I was awakened about four o'clock with pains across my kidneys. The action of my kidneys was irregular. Doan's Kidney Pills took away the pains and regulated the action of my kidneys."

Control of Free Bridge Traffic.

One way out of the present controversy over the 1000 feet of track that will be the means of for the city of St. Louis to acquire this particular stretch of track by purchase or lease. The city city. If not, the city should grant the Terminal tions. no more favors or pass any more legislation it.

The Terminal needs St. Louis more than St. made to suffer more and more simply by the tinent. What in the world would be do with it city's withholding all legislation and other favors in case of war! and permits. Railroad men always have realized this, but somehow or other this never permeates to the brains of St. Louis people. Why is so much haste shown to pass the present proposed legislation that the Terminal wants?

St. Louis has needed badly for about half a century the services of an expert railroad strategist day it allowed the formation of parasite switching ompanies to begin—for the specific purpose of pecializing in making charges against St. Louis traffic. The services of such an expert pitted against the schemes of our special charge artists would be invaluable. EX-RAILROAD MAN.

Benefits of the Circus. To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In the "People's Column" of your paper for March 17, I noticed a few lines in regard to circuses, which, to my mind rather belied the signa-ture, "Progress," for to my mind those who would callous of suffering.

w minor receipts for the local merchant when State's poultry products. the general agent arrives, weeks ahead of the show, but the first big item is contributed with commissary agent or 24-hour man, whose duty both animals and people, and, by the way, let me say, they are always the best that can be bought; he also makes arrangements for laundry work to be done, and things of that character; this alone is a big item in a crowd of 1200 or 1500 people.

Then comes the show train itself in many sections, carrying people enough to populate a good-sized town. Each one of these spends a fair per-centage of their earnings in the different cities they visit. Then figure the crowds of out-of-tans rejoiced. Well, why shouldn't he have been aggrieved! By the yardstick of the comply, and it would not be any additional cost to the parent. I am not a teacher, but a friend of distance from Cape May to a point in the same than up in moth balls in the codag chart.

After careful inspection of the Missouri po litical field and due consideration of the chance of success, former Gov. Joseph W. Folk has decided not to enter the contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

It is not a promising outlook. The State Democratic ticket will have heavy liabilities to carry. It will be weighted with the feeble administration of Gov. Major. To this is added the insincere and silly indorsement of Gov. Major for the vice presidential nomination. The load is capped with the damaging interference of the Governor and his appointees in the conduct of police in Kansas City and with the police and excise in St. Louis to gain his own political ends. In Kansas City the Governor's faction misused the police in the primaries and grossly and oppressively elections in favor of the Major faction. In St. Louis the Governor played fast and loose with the enforcement of the liquor laws and increased popular disgust by odious police methods of emphasizing his after-the-indorsement spasm of virtue. The local Democratic party in St. Joseph is torn with dissensions on account of the political meddling of Gov. Major's appointees.

The Governor added insult to injury in the Kansas City outrage. He flippantly replied to the resolution of the Chamber of Commerce asking an investigation of the conduct of the Police Board by saying "it was a typical Kansas City election" and washing his hands of the affair.

It will take an extraordinarily strong ticket to offset these heavy Democratic handicaps. It must be free from the taint of the Major administration and from the grip of the Jefferson City officeholding clique.

The pessimism of party leaders may be judged by their freely expressed hope that the presidential ticket will save the State ticket. This is a forlorn hope, no matter how strong the President may be. If the party cannot save itself it is headed for the ditch.

There is a horse-laugh over high gasoline Dobbin expects to come back.

THE SLAUGHTER OF POLICEMEN.

The public judgment as to police efficiency is formed from their success in solving such crime mysteries as that of Motor Cycle Patrolman John F. McKenna's murder and Patrolman W. A. Dillon's disappearance later, and not from that of plodding effort in merely routine cases.

The known circumstances of the murder, per petrated by two men whose automobile Patrolman McKenna had pursued and overtaken, should abused the police power to control the subsequent furnish his colleagues of the department with every incentive for the most vigorous action in discovering the identity of the murderers and punishing them.

If the offense for which he had halted them was nothing more serious than an infraction of the traffic laws, the murder must rank among the most wanton and shocking of recent crimes.

In a few days more than two years, six St. Louis policemen's lives have been sacrificed to desperate outlaws in the performance of duty. In the case of but two has punishment been inflicted on the guilty.

But the time and energy of the department have sufficed for a surveillance of the public in its dinings and recreations. The census of women who take regular or occasional meals in restaurants and cafes was doubtless completed without a single failure in enumeration.

Six policemen murdered in two years—an av erage of about one every four months! It is an extraordinary record. The unsolved mysteries in which others than policemen were victims ar lamentably numerous.

Should not all lesser matters be subordinated until these victims of the forces of disorder and lawlessness are avenged?

"The Lord looks after children, drunken men and the United States," quotes ex-President Prof. Taft. But even the Lord may weary of the stupidity of unpreparedness. He helps those who help themselves.

Mr. Roosevelt's promise not to do any pussyfooting if the voters will let him be Presiden again ought to help his candidacy. Such a promise from him is about the same as a promise from Mr. Taft to forswear all Ballingers and Paynes and Aldriches or a promise from Mr. McKinley to renounce Hanna and all his works. For the Colonel seemed to be pussyfooting a good deal of the time when he was President before—pussyfooting with Mr. Platt from the very moment of his entrance into serious politics, pussyfooting later with Mr. Harriman and Mr. Morgan, pussyfooting with steel magnates over the Tennessee Coal and Iron deal, pussyfooting continually with the representatives of the darker politics while making a bluff with the uplifters

PIE AND BLOODSHED.

Every time we vary our solemnity with a bit of merriment some innocent bystander gets hurt and mad at us, so that we have almost resolved never to get gay again.

The other day we blithely remarked that the introduction of United States pie into Porto Rico was a very promising thing; that as a mode of benevolent assimilation it promised to do more to inculcate a kindly feeling towards the United States than 16 years of legislation, conferences pleadings, experiments and bloodshed, and as a means of introducing our culture was hardly with the opening of the circus season. After looking over the plight of the party in Missouri Mr. Clark and Mr. Folk have both given up its redemption as a bad job. Now, if a couple of Republican Moses will take the same view of the Republican party's plight in Missouri, the people can take the State over and make something of it.

A reader of Just a Minute thinks that in announcing Mr. Taft as the speaker yesterday the City Club might have suggested who the gentleman is. We think so, too. He is the man who carried Utah and Vermont in the last presidential race.

Judging by the discreet silence he is keeping of late, Senator Gore must have subsequently fallen into the hands of his political advisers.

One of our sky pilots protests against the antipreparedness movement, and hopes no minister will lend his pulpit to its propaganda. Without wishing to cross the good gentleman in his present mood, we still trust that any minister who thinks preparedness in some of the varieties proposed would be a mistake will not hesitate to lend his pulpit to the other point

THE LANGUAGE OF LOVE. Miss Ellen Terry says that in the highly conventional anguage of love stupid and clever fly to the same phrases.

Dearest (I call you this because you are The dearest girl as far as I'm concerned) Why should mere age or repetition bar The use of pretty phrases, neatly turned? If I, for instance, praise your starry eyes, The adjective to me seems apt and true: Your Cherry lips I still apostrophise Because I feel that "beetroot" wouldn't do.

The tale is told of one who earned high fame For sheer profanity till, on a day, A younger artist of distinction came. Opened a curtain fire and said his say. The elder paused, astonished and confused. And when his friends demanded why he kept So strangely silent, answered, "He has used All the best words!" and bowed his head and wept.

That is not my position, not at all. I am a plagiarist both frank and free; The dear old phrases, though they may recall Yet greater bards, are good enough for me. ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Cold Weather Causes Managements of Browns and Cardinals to Call Off Contest-Game Tomorrow Scheduled to Be Played at Sportsman's Park.

By W. J. O'Connor,

HE fifth game of the spring series, scheduled to be played this afternoon at Sportsman's Park, was called off shortly after noon on account of the cold weather. The managements of the local outfits held off as long as possible before cancelling the battle.

Although it snowed all of last night and almost up to noon, the officials held out hopes of being able to stage the battle as scheduled. At 11:30 o'clock it was announced that if the sun came through and it became warmer the two teams would fight it out.

The two teams are scheduled to play tomorrow, the clash to be decided at Sportsman's Park, the home of the Brownies.

Murphy Meets Toughest Rival in Benny McNeill

South Side Bantam Has Never Been Called Upon to Battle So Worthy a Foe as He Meets Tonight When He Stacks Up Against Canadian.

By Harry S. Sharpe.

Referee of the Future City Athletic Club and the Post-Dispatch's Authority.

TIMMY MURPHY is down for the hardest test of his boxing career tonight when he faces Benny McNeil at the South Broadway Athletic Club. Murphy has never been called upon to meet a boxer quite so fast or elever. It is to the South Side boy's credit, however, that he runs away from no man and gives the best he has from start to finish. Murphy is clever, by no means slow, has a punch that hurts, dogged determination and the ambition to be returned a winner at all times. He has been beaten, but when this has happened he has never complained, and has come right back again with no sign of discouragement.

Murphy demonstrated in his bout with Frankie White on March 11 that he is going better right now than ever perfore. He is determined to make a great effort against McNeill, and he has many things in his favor. He will be boxing in the club of which he has been a member a long while; he is accustomed to the surroundings, and his many friends will be at the ringside to give him every available help; he will be boxing in a ring with which he is perfectly acquainted; this ring is one of the 'heaviest' in town; this is the ring in which he has been doing his training, and it will be for much adventage to him; it is a ring that quickly tires a boxer not accustomed to it. All these things favor Murphy.

Murphy is a great favorite with the day. In commenderation of the event handsome bronze medals have been struck.

The Lafayette-South Side Bank of St. Louis will open its new building at Broadway and Lafayette avenues, Monday. In commemoration of the event handsome bronze medals have been struck.

On one side of the medal are portrait busts of Adolphus Busch and Peter J. Doerr, who figured largely in the history of the South Side and Lafayette Banks, respectively. These two institutions were marged to form the present ban. Mr. Busch founded the South Side Bank in 1891, and served as president until his death in 1913. Mr. Doerr was the first cashier of the Lafayette Bank, serving from 1876 until the death of former Mayor Henry Ziegenhein, whom he succeeded as president. Mr. Doerr died in 1911.

The reverse side shows the new bank building, the name of the bank and the date.

The charter of the bank was approved by the State Bank Commission yesterday. The bank has a capital stock of $500,000.

"DRIFTING WATERS."

FTER one has unished reading "Drifting Waters," by Rachel Swete Macnamara he is very apt to stretch and then wonder whether he s in his own home town or in the land f Egypt, with its vast deserts, its terrific heat and its quaint antiquity, for the fact that it began in smoky-murky

The author, by clever manipulation of her characters, by shifting scenes, drawing striking contrasts and by playing on emotions and passions, is en-abled to hold the attention and interest of the reader through passages which, except for these sudden changes, would be dreary twaddle.

Anne Tudor and her mother. Margaret Tudor, live in a quiet, secluded section troduces the figure of "The Neck," a of London. Margaret Tudor had been sprite who obtrudes himself at interleserted by her husband and had obtained a divorce, although she still loved him. Her grief over his desertion was so overwhelming that she sought the solitude of her secluded home, not seeing any of her former friends or relatives. In this atmospher Anne was reared an abnormal child, as in Sweden. It suffers from capriage, and associating with older people

When a 17-year-old girl, Anne's Tudor relations persuaded her mother to permit Anne to visit them for a month, It was on this visit that Anne met Richard Assheton, also a relation of the Tudors, who later turned out to be Anne's lover. At this time Richard us of anyone stepping between her ed that he and Anne elope, he ship's doctor, in search of a position, and Anne kept her marriage secret.

From this point of the story until the close the author is at her best. The erene then drifts from London to Egypt. where Richard finds a billet, and to which place Anne finally goes after the clous dispute as to the merits of death of her mother, She and her husband, after having lived apart for such ding," which is not the wedding of a long time, are both reserved, each thinking the other cold and uninterestng. "UNDER FIRE" AS A NOVEL.

A S a novel, "Under Fire" is a good play. That is to say, the novelized version of the Rol Cooper Megrue version of the Roi Cooper Megrue was the ruled Germany, and as that system thriller does not escape the air of hack work which commonly pertains to such volumes. This is the natural Prussianized. During the past 20 years result of a close following of the order the incidents and the dialogue of the stage. Richard Parker is named as the ovelizer.

The story begins in England, shortly efore the outbreak of the war, and shifts to Belgium in the early war days nding with the saving of Paris at the Marne. Spies do nearly all the impor tant work of warfare, it appears, and about all the officers and soldiers have to do is to demonstrate "frightfulness" on peasants, or to get themselves de-stroyed in their trenches when their secret service has made a mistake. There is a love story, an American re-porter, and other ingredients of a sure-fire war play appear, in the proper pro-portion. The illustrations, while taken from the stage, are not crude halftmes. from plays. (Macauley.)

ries, and Anton Tchekoff's (or Chekhov's) plays, second series, have appeared simultaneously. Edwin Bjorkman is the translator of the Swedish playwright, and Julius West is the translator of the second series of the Russian dramatist's plays, the first series having been rendered into English by Marian Fell.

There are four of the Striftdberg plays, and the predominant appeal is to mysticism and the morbid spirit. One can hardly imagine a stage presentation of 'The Spook Sonata, which is a perfect devil's dance of paranois. "The Bridal Crown" deals with Dalecarlian folk legend, and invals, chirping "I am hoping, still hoping, that my Redeemer yet liv-

The Tchekoff plays, on the other hand, abound in the human appeal was a medical student, and he and and in most enjoyable picturings of Anne had many enjoyable afternoons the Russian people, particularly together. While on one of these aftermoons Richard told Anne of his love.

Margaret Tudor, the mother, was dialogues rivals that of Gogel's "Dead Souls," which has been ac and Anne, and fearing that Richard claimed as the Russian "Pickwick would some day do so, disliked him Papers." Two quaintly laughable very much. Therefore when Richard playlets are "The Proposal" and "The Wedding." In the first, a man found Anne a willing accomplice. So goes to the home of the woman whom they were married in a quiet way just he wishes to marry, and before he before Richard sailed to Australia as can get to his proposal, gets into a terrific argument with her and her father, over an old land dispute. This is composed when it develops that he came to propose; but before he can get to his proposal, he and his bride-to-be are off again, in a ferothe pair just mentioned, shows a lu-dicrous series of incidents, resulting of a commonplace pair.

"On the High Road," picturing a tavern scene, has a suggestion-of resemblance to Gorky's "Night Refuge," but is relieved by humor. The prin cipal figure is a drunkard, willing to sell his soul for vodka, but finding "The Cherry Orchard" and "The Three names of characters, whose last names are listed in the casts. "Now do get up! It's this way every morning. You wait for the last moment and then have to rush through a hasty breakfast, and you delay Gertrude with her work." "I'm getting right up!" muttered Mr Jarr drowslly. "This is the way it goes all the time! continued Mrs. Jarr. "I'm getting right up!" repeated Mr.

He was taiking in his sleep. "If you don't get right up I'll throw water over you!" cried Mrs. Jarr. Mr. Jarr heard her threatening, bu all he murmured was, "I'm all right. I'm all right!" And again he was far away

"Isn't that like him!" cried Mrs. Jarr "We've been up hours and hours and breakfast is all ready and waiting, and to your office and then you'll abuse me for not waking you, and you'll have to rush off like a wild man, without hardly touching your breakfast!" No answer, except a faint low sough

"And after getting you such a nice breakfast, too! Getting you what I know you're fond of. And poor Gertrude Mrs. Jarr, noting that he heard her not, stopped speaking. Like the miller who awakens when the mill stops, Mr. Jarr came to consciousness with a sud-den jerk, and, sitting up with a bewildering look on his face, said:

"I said 'Get up!' " cried Mrs. Jarr, and she threw open the bedroom window and pulled the bed clothes off. Mr Jarr shivered slightly, but tried to compose himself to slumber again without the cozy comfort of the coverings.
"I said that this is the last time I'd ever try to get a nice breakfast for you! 'The LAST time!" cried Mrs. Jarr.

"What have you for breakfast?" as red Mr. Jarr, now taking notice as well as sitting up.

"Buckwheat cakes and country sausage with gravy," replied Mrs. Jacr "Why didn't you say so?" asked Mr. arr. "What do you want to let me oversleep in this way for, ney? You know I've got to be at the office at 3! What tim is it?"

He commenced to fumble for his clothes. He got his watch and glanced

"It isn't 8 o'clock yet. I could have slept 10 minutes more," he continued sulkily. "You haven't any buckwheat takes and country sausage and gravy." His mouth watered at the words, Mr. Jarr would stay up all night for that sort of a breakfast. "I'm not saying, since you contradict me so confidently, that we have buckwheat cakes and sausage and gravy for breakfast," said Mrs. Jarr. but I will say this, you should be up and have had your breakfast, and also I want to ask you what you smell cooking?" Mr. Jarr sniffed. He sniffed again. A seraphic smile illumined his visage. "It IS buckwheat cakes a-cooking. And it IS country sausage! So of course there must be that good old gravy with

And he sprang for his bathrobe, rushed for a hasty shower and a good scrub, rushed back again and did a wonderful feat of getting inside his clothes in five minutes, brushed his hair and cried;
